Michael Collins House, Clonakilty a new museum dedicated to 'The Big Fella', Michael Collins. Bringing the history of Irish independence to life for all the family.

The museum, which opened in 2016, is an excellent resource which brings a large period of Irish history to life and presents it in an easy to understand and personal manner. Learn of the local patriots who went before Collins and dedicated their lives to an independent Ireland, influencing the path which Collins would take. Explore the life of Michael Collins himself, the farmers son, the rebel, the politician, the soldier, the leader; the 'Big Fella'.

Michael Collins House prides itself on being an accessible and enjoyable experience for all ages and levels of interest with a family friendly atmosphere promoting interaction and intrigue. To do this it utilises guided tours, interactive displays, audio visuals, artefacts, activity sheets and information boards all aimed at providing an educational but fun experience for everyone.
